

Washington State Emergency Management Division

Exercise Design (G139)

February 13-15, 2007

Port Angeles, Washington

The Exercise Design course provides training in a proven, systematic process for the development of effective exercises and of an evaluation methodology to “capture” the lessons to be learned from an exercise. It is aimed at emergency management personnel from local, state, federal and tribal agencies as well as from the private sector. Students work in groups to develop exercises in class, and on the final day play roles in an exercise, developed by classmates, which simulates the activation of a local emergency operations center.

PREREQUISITE:

Required: G230 or IS-230 Principles of Emergency Management

IS-120 An Orientation to Community Disaster Exercises

Recommended: IS-139 Exercise Design
